Dear Syed Sami Raza

Columbia University Press (CUP) would like to include your material, as described below, in our subscription product, Columbia International Affairs Online (CIAO). CIAO is a full-text online database of mostly aggregated content, encompassing official research papers produced by government-supported and independent think tanks, academic journal articles, and full-length e-books in the field of international relations and related sub-fields. CIAO also features country data and detailed maps provided by the Economist Intelligence Unit. CIAO subscribers include most colleges and universities in the United States, many overseas institutions of higher education, government agencies, NGOs and policy institutes. Many thousands of users will discover your material through simple searches.

Your material will be accessible only to subscribers of CIAO. If you would like for Columbia University Press to include your material in the CIAO database, you shall agree to allow your material to be accessed from your institution's website in PDF format. In exchange for the right to include your material in the CIAO database, CUP agrees to include an institutional credit to be mutually agreed upon and links back to your institutional website.

You grant CUP a nonexclusive, worldwide, perpetual license to include your material in the CIAO database and the right to use your institution's name in connection with the publication of your material, and the promotion of CIAO. Both you and CUP reserve the right to cease use of the material at any time and will notify the other if it ceases such use.

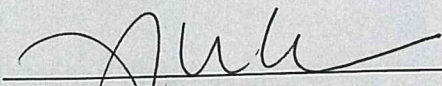

You represent and warrant that your material and its use by Columbia University Press via CIAO do not violate the rights of any third party or any applicable law or regulation and that you have the rights necessary to grant to Columbia University Press under this Agreement.

Description of material: Review of Human Rights (journal)

If we may have your permission to include your material in the CIAO database, please sign below where indicated and return a copy to us.

Sincerely,

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS

Jennifer Crewe
Associate Provost and Director

ACCEPTED AND AGREED
